Selected for the CDP 2025 Climate Change Corporate A List, the highest rating

The only general construction company in the Corporate A List for the eighth consecutive year

Toda Corporation (headquarters: Chuo-ku, Tokyo; President: Otani Seisuke) has been selected for the CDP 2025 Climate Change Corporate A List, the highest ranking, by CDP (head office: London), an international non-profit organization conducting environmental assessments. We were recognized as a global corporate leader in its activities and disclosures regarding climate change. We have been on the Climate Change Corporate A List for the eighth consecutive year since 2018, and are the only general construction company in Japan to achieve this.

We aim to reduce greenhouse gas emissions in our business activities to net zero by 2050 and are undertaking climate change measures throughout the entire supply chain. Additionally, in CDP 2025, we received a B rating in both the Water Security and Forest categories, recognizing our company for proper management of water resources and timber resources. We will continue to work on solving various environmental issues, including climate change.

About CDP

CDP is a global non-profit organization established in 2000, and operates a global environmental disclosure system. In 2025, more than 22,100 companies disclosed environmental information through CDP, of which 20,000 received scores. CDP scores are widely used to drive investment and procurement decisions toward a sustainable and resilient economy.

The Company will optimize its management resources to promote revenue growth and improve capital efficiency, aiming to enhance corporate value while achieving its medium- to long-term target of 10% ROE.
